†- The 4th National Convention of the Jewish Socialist Federation, held in Boston from May 29-June 1, 1919, split into Left and Right wings. The Left Wing minority departing the organization established themselves as the “Jewish Left Wing Federation of the Socialist Party” and began issuing their own official organ in the Yiddish language called Der Kampf [The Struggle] on June 27. The breakaway group held their own “First Convention” in Philadelphia from October 9-12, 1919, at which the group voted unanimously to affiliate with the Communist Party of America and to adopt that organization’s program in its entirety. Alexander Bittelman was on the 8 member Central Executive Committee that was elected by this founding convention of the “Jewish Communist Federation.”
